

Burners Experience

Kill it. Take it. Level in town.

You buy character level from the XP table below. You never buy Traits, Signatures, or spell learning with XP. You earn by overcoming monsters and claiming treasure. Magic items grant 0 XP — the item is the reward (see [[Burners Principles#Earned in play]]).

Town is where you spend coin and buy levels — not the XP gate.

Awards

Source	Award
Monster overcome	XP by Hit Dice (killed, routed, or otherwise neutralized). Prefer the monster's printed OSE XP; short chart in [[Burners OSE Conversions#Monster XP by Hit Dice (OSE)]].
Coins, gems, jewelry	1 XP per 1 gp when claimed
Goods, art, equipment	Sale value in gp, when sold
Magic items	0 XP — the item is the reward
Exploration (optional)	Small crumb per wilderness hex newly mapped or dungeon room meaningfully explored — on the monster XP scale

OSE treasure values. Port coin, gem, and jewelry values as written. The Referee sets each find's gp once — now or later. Unknown gp does not block the award once the haul is claimed.

Claimed treasure

Treasure XP lands only when the table has made the haul party loot. One of these is enough:

1. Taken and named — “we take the coin bag / the caskets / the torc”
2. Counted or asked — “how much is in it?” / split / sold
3. Stowed as party loot — bag, mule, hireling, Gudmund lock-up, inn room

If they kill the thing and walk away without saying they keep the jewelry, there is no treasure XP for it. Do not invent claims.

Asking the price later does not change who earned it. The roster is whoever was present when it became party loot — not who asked the total afterward.

How the players later spend or store the physical loot does not change who earned the XP.

Who Gets the XP

Awards are per scene. Characters have no sessions — only scenes (a fight, a claim, the road between). “Session” / game night is a table label for when you wrote the note.

- Monster: whoever is present for that fight (when the foe is overcome). Left before the fight, or arrived after it ended → no share.
- Treasure: whoever is present when the haul is claimed. Arrived after it was already bagged → no share of that claim.

Split that scene’s pot evenly among everyone present (PCs and delving retainers). Mustering retainers keep a full share ([[Burners Muster]] — Boss plays them). Retainers not Mustering keep half of their award (OSE); the other half is discarded. Do not count anyone as a half-share in the divisor.

Treasure pay is separate: living retainers still expect a half-share of the coin taken — see [[Burners Muster]]. If the players do not offer it, the Referee speaks for them.

The leaderboard is earned XP only — what already counts toward level.

When to write it down

Award in the scene when you can. If you batch notes after game night, still list each scene with who was there for that scene — not one roster for the evening.

Quick check: overcome? claimed? still lying there? — per fight / per haul.

Prefer ending in town or writing absentees out when you can, so mid-night arrive/leave is rare.

Part Out

Players may optionally part out a monster for extra wealth. Value as treasure. XP only as gp when claimed (or when sold, for goods). No second award on top of the monster’s XP.

Exploration (optional)

Small crumb per hex newly mapped or room meaningfully explored. Monster XP scale — never the main driver.

When You Spend It

XP banks as you earn it. Buy a character level only in civilization. Mid-delve rank-ups do not happen. Rare emergencies are the Referee’s call.

Character level	XP
1	0
2	2,000

Character level	XP
3	4,000
4	8,000
5	16,000
6	32,000
7	64,000
8	120,000

Every level is one Approach point — see Approach Level in [[Burners Adventure Game]]. Retainers level on this table in civilization ([[Burners Muster]]).

Who Tracks What

Referee

- Track earned XP per PC and retainer.
- Per scene: what was overcome or claimed, and who was present for that scene.
- Give a player their PC's XP when they ask.
- Track treasure found or potential — location, gp, hidden detail — in your notes.
- After the find is described, do not re-list treasure for the players.
- Speak for retainers skipped on their fair cut ([[Burners Muster]]).

Players

- Track treasure found and how you dispose of it.
- Track spends.
- Unlogged finds are not available to spend until you account for them. Own the ledger.
